AMICA FOOD MENU

THE ART OF APERITIVO

Small plates • excellent company • absolutely no rush

An Italian tradition. A British talent for staying out.

Born in 18th-century Italy, aperitivo began as a simple pre-dinner drink to awaken the appetite. Somewhere along the way, it evolved into an altogether more delightful affair: elegant cocktails, irresistible little bites and the fine art of making absolutely no plans for the rest of the evening.

Think perfectly poured spritzes, delicious plates and excellent company. Dinner can wait, tomorrow can worry about itself, and that second cocktail was practically inevitable. A little Italian sophistication, a little British mischief, and just enough good taste to make it look intentional.

COME FOR ONE. STAY FOR ANOTHER. BLAME THE APERITIVO.

SMALL PLATES

3 FOR 11 • 6 FOR 20 * 3 supplement applies

Mixed olives 4

Classic bruschetta 4
With tomato and basil

Mushroom and goat's cheese bruschetta 5

Bruschetta 5
Rocket, stracciatella cheese & bresaola (cured beef)

Zucchini fritti 5
Courgette tempura with aioli sauce

Fries 4
Add truffle paste and Parmesan +1

Tenderstem broccoli 4
With chilli and white wine

Penne arrabbiata 5
Penne pasta cooked in tomato, chilli and garlic sauce

Pan-seared mushrooms 4
In garlic, chilli and white wine sauce

Pan-fried brie 5
Served with slow-cooked pear and homemade jam

Goat's cheese 5
Served with toasted ciabatta, mixed salad and red onion caramel

Gnocchi 5
Cooked in chilli, garlic, tomato and creamy white wine sauce

Spinach and ricotta ravioli 5
Served in creamy tomato sauce

Calamari fritti 6
Served with homemade tartare sauce

Butterflied king prawns 6
In garlic, chilli and white wine sauce

Chicken popcorn 5
Served with homemade vegetable sauce

Chicken skewers 5
Served with dipping sauce

 Cheese & meat platter 8
Bresaola, Gorgonzola, goat's cheese and Grana Padano, served with toasted ciabatta and rocket

DESSERTS

Affogato 5
Fior di latte gelato, espresso

Classic tiramisu 5
Espresso-soaked ladyfingers, creamy mascarpone and a dusting of cocoa

For any allergens or food intolerances, please let a member of staff know.